

Enterprise Systems Corporation Deploys Nortel Communications solutions for Austin American Statesman

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Contact: Rodney Hyde
President
713-343-1222
rhyde@enter-sys.com
<http://www.enter-sys.com>

HOUSTON, TEXAS – April, 2005 - Enterprise Systems Corporation announced today that a total of five Nortel Communications Systems will be deployed for Austin American Statesman's outlying community newspaper branches. The branches are located in Texas. The installation of the Nortel systems will provide a common platform for five local newspapers that are currently a mixture of obsolescent key systems.

ABOUT ENTERPRISE SYSTEMS CORPORATION

Houston, Texas Based Enterprise Systems Corporation services and supports Nortel voice and data solutions including Meridian 1, Succession, CS1000, CallPilot, Symposium, Meridian Mail, Norstar and BCM. Competencies include TDM circuit switched telephony, VoIP and wireless engineering and deployment.

ABOUT AUSTIN AMERICAN STATESMAN

Austin American Statesman is the news and information publication for Central Texas. The Statesman family of websites — including Statesman.com, Austin360.com, and StatesmanClassifieds.com — have over 420,000 registered users and over 22 million page views per month. The Austin American family of newspapers and websites are clearly Central Texas's top news and information source. Austin American is a publication of Cox Texas Newspapers L.P.